Master Builders partners with safety business HazardCo to improve industry safety

December 13, 2022

Master Builders Association of Western Australia (MBA WA), has partnered with HazardCo, well-renowned health and safety company that gives its members in the construction industry the systems and advice they need to make their job safer and easier to do.

HazardCo provides digital tools that assist in providing health and safety, from scan boards to their digital app, they have put the right tools in place to make on-site safety a priority.

Master Builders WA has partnered with HazardCo, to offer its members access to the leading digital health and safety systems for home builders and trades and improve industry safety. As our preferred health and safety provider, Master Builder WA members receive discounts and added benefits including industry specific health and safety services.

Master Builders WA members are entitled to a free WHS check-up to take stock of what should be done on-site and off-site to provide a safer site and work environment. The team at HazardCo will help evaluate current systems in light of the new WHS laws in WA and will provide guidance on what's being done well and areas of improvement.

Executive Director of Master Builders WA, John Gelavis says we are really excited about this partnership, as it will help provide Master Builders members with the opportunity to access reliable safety tools and advice, which will build a better and safer industry for all.

“The WA building and construction industry relies on safety advice, and with the recently changed Work Health and Safety Laws, this partnership with HazardCo will be an extremely useful tool and service for our members”, says Mr Gelavis.

Chief Executive and Director of HazardCo, Ian Dixon says HazardCo is proud to partner with Master Builders WA.

“Master Builders WA is one of the most recognised and respected brands in the industry. This partnership reflects our desire to collaborate with companies who share the common goal of helping builders to keep their teams and their businesses safe. We look forward to meeting more builders throughout WA and introducing them to a better, simpler way to manage their health and safety”, says Mr Dixon.
