

WA wins at National Building & Construction Awards

28 November 2022

Western Australian building and construction businesses were big winners at the 2022 National Excellence in Building and Construction Awards.

Tools were down to celebrate the building and construction industry's best and brightest with WA businesses walking away as winners in eight categories.

Master Builders Australia CEO Denita Wawn congratulated the winners and finalists for reaching this highly competitive stage.

"The pre-eminent national awards for the industry was the first time it returned to its normal face-to-face format following disruptions from the pandemic."

Spadaccini Homes took out the major National Residential Master Builder of the Year Award for their Hirniak residence project in Western Australia.

"This resort-style home makes the most of its surroundings to take the ocean vista, with every aspect of the build reflecting the highest quality workmanship.

"The judges were impressed with the exemplary finishes and the attention to detail by the builder and all trades," said Ms Wawn.

Master Builders WA Executive Director John Gelavis applauded the state winners and said the building and construction industry has demonstrated that in the face of adversity, it continues to provide the highest quality outcomes for clients around the country.

Denita Wawn said the annual three-day event culminates in the announcement of the country's best builders in residential, commercial and civil construction and recognises the projects that have won them acclaim.

"To be in the running for a National Excellence Award, entrants must have progressed from winning awards in their State or Territory and must be nominated by their local Master Builders Association to being judged for a national award."
